J. C. Ruddock returned Tuesday from at rip to Fort Bragg. He represented F. A. Korman, a piano agent who was arrested on a charge of embezzlement preferred by his employers.

Henry Meyer, Art Gibson and Sam Blodes expect to leave Sunday for a camping trip to Brushy mountain. They will be gone three weeks and the carnage amongst the deer will be simply awful.

Noel H. Garrison, the new principal of the Ukiah high school, and family arrived from Stockton this week and have taken up their abode in the Curtis residence on State street. Mr. and Mr. Garrison are excellent additions to Ukiah society and they will meet with a royal welcome from our people.

ARMSTRONG HELD ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Justice of the Peace Thomas E. Armstrong, of Hopland, was arrested last Tuesday, charged with embezzling the funds of Court Duncan's Peak, A. O. F. He was brought to this city that evening and spent the night in jail. On Wednesday the preliminary hearing was set for next Tuesday, and Armstrong was placed under bonds of $500. His brother-in-law, Harry Thompson, came up from Hopland yesterday and deposited $250 cash bail for the judge.

The complaint charges the misuse of $117.40 but the total amount of shortage is about $900. Armstrong became the treasurer of the lodge in 1904 and began to use the funds of the lodge in his private business intending to replace the money when needed or called for. He admits using the funds and will doubtless throw himself on the mercy of the court. He has always borne a good reputation and his arrest came as a great surprise to his many friends.

He has been a wheel horse in the order of Foresters and was highly honored by all. He has been justice of the peace for many years and has also been doing a great deal of the road work for Supervisor Lawson. He is a hard working man and has no bad habits and his friends are at a loss to understand the matter. His wife has been an invalid for years and is prostrated by the shock. He has four children. Friends of the Justice hope that the matter can be arranged next Tuesday by replacing the funds and having the charge dismissed.

SANTA ROSA MAKES A GREAT SHOWING

The editor of this paper took a flying trip to Santa Rosa Wednesday afternoon, returning yesterday. We had not visited the town for nearly a year, and must say that the people there have shown wonderful activity in the last year. The town is nearly rebuilt and will present a far more substantial and imposing appearance than formerly. The buildings are mostly of concrete and are earthquake proof.

The two newspaper offices were almost totally destroyed by the fire and quake. They certainly put on a lively appearance now. The Republican is nicely located in a reinforced concrete building that was erected by Editor Lemon for the special purpose. The Press Democrat has just got moved into its new headquarters just opposite its competitor, and presents a splendid appearace. The building was errected especially for the newspaper office, and shows everything off to excellent advantage. It is certainly the best appointed building and most complete plant in northern California and the proprietors should shake hands with each other and extend congratulations.

Beans Make Business

The Lake county bean crop is now being hauled to Ukiah for shipment. The returning teams take back empty cans to be filled. About 80,000 dozen constitute the season's output. The big Lucas Bros. warehouse is filled to overflowing with empty and filled cases.

EDITOR'S JAUNT TO FOG BELT

A Royal Time Among the Best People on Earth

On July 19th the writer, accompanied by his wife and son, started for the coast on a four weeks' outing. The trip was an exceedingly pleasant one and will always be remembered as one of the most pleasant ever taken in the county. The journey was made by private conveyance, so we went as we pleased, so to speak—stopping where ever we got hungry or became tired.

Handley's was reached for lunch the first day, and a fine meal we got, too, as all know who have partaken of Mrs. Handley's hospitality. Here we met Lafe Ball and wife and Bob Kerr who had come over from the fog belt to kill a deer. Failing in this they left and overtook us again at Melburne where they proceeded to hike for the hills in quest of the antlered monarch.

The first night out was spent at the Half Way House where Eiler Openlander and wife succeeded well in relieving the pangs of hunger. The next night found us at Fort Bragg, in care of Joe Rushing, who is second to none as a hotel-man. Mr. Rushing certainly has a splendid patronage at the Windsor. His hotel is crowded almost all of the time, as his fame as a genial host has gone abroad. The coast is enjoying a good tourist travel now and Joe had all he could accommodate. There were a number of Ukiahites there, among whom we saw Mrs. Emmet Donohoe, Mrs. Jessie Porterfield, Miss Etta Donohoe, and Dr. Wadsworth and wife, of Berkeley, but formerly of Ukiah.

Fort Bragg has made wonderful strides since the earthquake, and is now in better condition from all points of view than ever before. So it would seem that the earthquake was a blessing in disguise. It has had the effect of waking people up, and the result is a very clean town that is rapidly putting on metropolitan airs. Cement side walks are laid along all the principal streets. The new buildings are all of wood, but are substantial and imposing. In a few months more there will be nothing to remind one of the ravages of the earthquake and fire except memory. Fort Bragg is easily the metropolis of the coast and her citizens are prosperous and happy.

From Fort Bragg the journey was continued to Westport, the objective point of the trip. Here we remained for three weeks as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. McFaul, of the Howard Creek Lumber Company. This is an ideal place just four miles back of Westport and is free from the raw coast wind and fog. The Howard Creek Lumber Company was formerly located on Howard creek, but the lands there were sold and the company began operations on the old Devilbiss place four miles back of town. Mr. McFaul had just got the mill installed a few days before our arrival, and it was cutting at a pretty good clip for a new mill. W. P. is the genial manager of the business, and is ably assisted by Mrs. McFaul who acts as secretary and bookkeeper. About fifty-five or sixty men are employed at present in the mill and woods. The mill has a capacity of 25000 feet per day, and will soon be keeping all hands busy. Fred Hunter is the superintendent of the mill and Joe Britten is "woods boss." George B. Shelton and son are the boss tie makers, the two together making from eighty to ninety per day. Taking it all together the plant is a good one and is most excellently located. The mill is in a canyon where the logs are easy of access. The lumber is hauled up a tramway for half a mile and then hauled to town on wagons. A great many ties are also made here.

Westport is now quite a lumber and tie center. Besides the Howard Creek Lumber Company there are also the California Lumber Company on Wages Creek, the Star Lumber

TWO LIVES SNUFFED OUT

Teaming Accidents Responsible For Two Total Accidents

Charles Caldwell was killed at Sherwood Wednesday while hauling a load of bark. He was out on the road alone and the load of bark toppled over causing the wagon to fall on him. The distressing accident occurred about 11 o'clock and Caldwell was found shortly after dinner.

The justice of the peace, John Snow, was notified and went up and held an inquest. The young man was a resident of Geyserville and the remains were shipped there for interment. He was twenty-four years old and was formerly a resident of Anderson valley. He was to have been married in a few weeks to Miss Birdie Looney, of Boonville, and the young lady is prostrated over the death of her lover.

Man Killed Near Westport

The Fort Bragg Advocate says: Judge Whipple went up the coast last Wednesday to hold an inquest on the body of Fred Seafelt, who was killed the day before by being thrown out of a wagon. After hearing the evidence, the coroner's jury brought in a verdict of accidental death.

Seafelt, who was about 40 years of age and a native of Wisconsin, was returningfrom Kibesillah to Westport with some companions, when the team ran away. He was thrown out, hitting on his head and shoulders, and while it was thought at the time that his injuries were light, he died a short time after he met with the accident.

Foreigners Naturalizing

Deputy County Clerk Mrs. White had her hands full Wednesday when four Italians applied to be naturalized. The making out of the papers under the new law is more of a task than formerly, and she was congratulating herself at the end of the work when two Russian Finns came in on the same mission.

Married in Santa Rosa

Joseph W. Lewis, an employee of the Snow Mountain Power Company and Miss Alice May Pfost, of this city, were married in Santa Rosa Tuesday.

WOMAN BRUTALLY BEATEN BY ITALIAN

A. Tacchoani, an Italian, was arrested in the southern part of the county Sunday for an alleged assault on a woman of his own nationality. Sheriff Donohoe went to Cloverdale Sunday afternoon and lodged the fellow in jail. His case came up in the justice's court Wednesday and about a dozen of his fellow countrymen were on hand, but it was found that the parties had settled the matter between themselves and the complaining witness did not want to prosecute. Justice Crockett succeeded, however, in getting the prisoner to plead guilty to a minor charge and he was fined $20.

It is said that the trouble arose over Tacchoani wanting the woman to go riding with him. She refused and it is claimed that he demonstrated his disapproval of her refusal by severely beating her. Her husband found her insensible and swore to the warrant for the culprit's arrest.

When Sheriff Donohoe brought the fellow up Sunday night the report quickly spread that he was the man wanted for the recent stage robbery near this city, but there was nothing to the report.

Marriage License Issued

A marriage license was issued last Monday to Roy Thomas Bradford and Jessie Edith Patton both of Willits.

Board of Education Meeting

The board of education held an official meeting at Mendocino last Saturday. As two of the members live on the coast and President Cleland and Superintendent Babcock were there on a trip, it was more convenient to meet there than at the county seat. It was also the board's desire to look over the high school building at that place and to determine by personal inspection the requirements of the school.

Among other things passed upon, a fence was ordered built around the high school grounds.

In the evening the members of the board attended a dinner at one of the local hotels, given by the high school teachers. All enjoyed the occasion very much and were greatly pleased at the hospitality of the teachers.

VISITING KNIGHTS ARE HAVING ROYAL TIME

The annual encampment of the Uniform Rank Knights of Pythias of this division of California is being held at Todd's grove in this city this week. Companys from Fort Bragg, Willits, Ukiah, Healdsburg and Vallejo are in attendance aside from members from other companies in the state.

Fully 100 men are enjoying camp life for the week. A score of tents are laid out in the military fashion and to further carry out the militant idea a sentry keeps guard over the camp all night long. It may be true that this guard is not as strict in his lonely vigil as is required during war time, but he is there just the same—or at least is put there, and it would hardly be fair to put another guard over him to see that he stays there all night.

The regimental band accompanied the Vallejo company and good music is dispensed liberally every day and evening. Monday forenoon the band gave a concert at the court house plaza, which was enjoyed by a large crowd.

A banquet was tendered the visitors Wednesday night by the members of the Ukiah company and the occasion was enjoyed immensely by all present.

Wednesday night was "ladies' night" at the camp and Mrs. J. M. Mannon was appointed "colonel" in charge. An interesting prorgam was rendered and a large crowd of townspeople was in attendance.

The competitive drill has not yet come off, as the company from Oakland, which was to have contested the crack Vallejo team, was not able to be here. Sunday is expected to be the last day of the encampment.

GEO. EFF BUYS FORKS ROAD HOUSE

George Eff has purchased the Col. Moore property at the "Forks" and will open a first-class road house. It is his intention to maintain a strictly orderly place, one that will not be objectionable to the neighborhood and that the most fastidious can patronize. He will pay particular attention to the culinary department and expects to build up a good business in Sunday dinners.

Mr. Eff is one of the best caterers in Mendocino county and his friends are certain that he will have a place that will become famous among local epicures. When in business in town his place was always quiet and orderly and never gave the authorities cause for complaint and he will endeavor to sustain his reputation in that regard.

Shock of Earthquake

A slight shock of earthquake was felt here last Sunday morning about 4:40 o'clock. The shock was about six seconds duration and was hard enough to rouse many from their slumbers. Other parts of the state report two shocks, one about the same time the one was felt here and another at 6:10. The temblor appeared to not have been heavy any place and no damage is reported.

J. C. Clow was over from his home in Anderson valley Monday.

Sudden Death of Estimable Lady

Last June a number of Ukiah people had the pleasure of meeting Mr. and Mrs. Wm. E. Brodersen, of Alameda, who were making a tour of this and Lake counties. Mr. Brodersen is connected with the wholesale house of Wichman, Lutgen & Co., and his wife was a sister of Fred Popp, formerly of Mendocino and Point Arena. Now the intelligence is received of the death of Mrs. Brodersen, which occurred last Friday. Mrs. Brodersen was an admirable woman and her husband is heart broken over her death. His many friends in this county will sympathize deeply with him in his bereavement.

A Fine Instrument

The new pipe organ for the M. E. Church South arrived and is being put in this week. It is expected that it will be ready to be used at Sunday's services. This is the first pipe organ in Mendocino county and its installation is commendatory of the enterprise and public spirit of the members of the church. The instrument cost over $1500.

GRAVITATION.

Its Wonderful and Far Reaching Effects Upon the World.

"The effects of gravitation are so familiar as to demand only the briefest mention, yet most of us perhaps seldom stop to consider how far reaching these effects are," says Dr. Henry Smith Williams. "But for gravitation the winds would not blow, the waters would not descend, and the mountain tops would not crumble into the valleys. Each particle of pulverized rock would remain where it was formed, and there would be no such thing as a mixed soil.

"But as matters are actually arranged gravitation is perpetually active, and every particle of matter is being eternally tugged at and urged to get nearer to the earth's center. So no sooner does a fragment of rock at a mountain crest become loosened than gravitation hurls it crashing down into the valley, shattering it into fragments perhaps or at the least grinding off some portions of its surface as well as of the surface of t' rocks against which it is dashed.

"By such means and with the further aid of its handmaidens, wind and water, gravitation works its unceasing purpose of leveling the surface of the earth. In a few brief geological moments it rounds the shoulders of the haughtiest mountain, and, given time enough, it will bring every particle of rock back to the sea bed, whence it originally sprang. Short of that, as a transition stage, it is forever mixing the different soil constituents on the one hand and sorting them out again on the other."—Appleton's.

FINE SPIDER THREADS.

Cultivated Especially For the Use of Astronomers.

The cultivation of certain species of spiders solely for the fine threads which they weave for scientific uses has an important bearing upon astronomy.

No substitute for the spider's thread has yet been found for bisecting the screw of the micrometer used for determining the positions and motions of the stars. Not only because of the remarkable fineness of the threads are they valuable, but because of their durable qualities.

The threads of certain spiders raised for astronomical purposes withstand changes in temperatures, so that often in measuring sun spots they are uninjured when the heat is so great that the lenses of the micrometer eyepiece are cracked.

These spider lines are only one-fifth to one-seventh of a thousandth of an inc. in diameter, compared with which the threads of the silkworm are large and clumsy.

Each line is made up of several thousands of microscopic streams of fluid. Under the most powerful magnifying glass they appear true and round.

The work of placing these lines in the micrometer requires the delicate touch of experts, who operate with the aid of microscopes which magnify the line a thousand times. The lines are placed parallel with each other and two one-thousandths of an inch apart.

Dangerous Quantities.

"Did you say quinine in it, sir?"

"Yes. The doctor says I am to take quinine in all the whisky I drink."

"But won't quinine be injurious—in such large quantities?"—London Opinion.

MAKING A BALLOON.

Precautions Taken to Keep the Gas Bag From Destruction.

It may interest the reader to hear something about the construction of a big modern balloon and its equipments. It is made of what is known as balloon cloth, which sometimes is of silk and is sewed in small sections of about a yard square, so that if one of the sections should burst the whole balloon would not collapse and destroy the aeronaut.

At the top of the bag is the valve to let the gas out when one wishes to descend. A rope for opening it runs from this valve through the center of the balloon to the operator in the basket. The balloon is filled through the neck, and this is left always open, so that when the gas expands from the heat of the sun or the lesser pressure of high altitudes the gas may escape and not burst the envelope.

As soon as the balloon is sewed together it is blown full of air and given three coats of varnish. Each coat must be allowed to dry thoroughly before the next is applied, or else they would never become perfectly dry, and the balloon would be likely to be destroyed at any minute from spontaneous combustion. This spontaneous combustion is not a bursting into flame, but a kind of exceedingly quick dry rot. I myself have lost three balloons through it. Once in my factory we were looking at a beauty when some one sniffed the air and remarked, "Thomas' balloon is gone." And so it proved to be. Five minutes saw it destroyed—rotten so that you could poke your finger through it.

Sometimes the balloon is so affected in only a few sections, and a man may make an ascension thinking his balloon is all right. Protected by the fine netting which envelops the balloon itself, he may even get up to some height before discovering his danger. In former times there were many fatal accidents from this cause.

When a balloon is packed, talcum or some other powder is sprinkled over the folds to keep them from adhering to each other. If this is neglected the balloon will be ruined, especially in hot weather.

As I said, a fine netting covers the balloon proper both to strengthen it and to carry the weight of the basket and its contents. All the strands of the netting come together in the "concentrating ring," just above the basket, in which the aeronaut stands. The anchor and guide ropes as well as the basket are fastened to this concentrating ring.

All modern balloons, besides the valve, have a rip cord fastened to a long patch sewed in the envelope, by means of which the balloon can be cut in two and brought to earth instantly. This is never used except in case of extreme emergency and where the basket is within ten or fifteen feet of the ground.—Dr. J. P. Thomas in Appleton's.

NEWSY ITEMS FROM WILLITS

Willits, August 13—There is nothing very startling to report in railroad news. E. F. DeCamp has compromised with Mr. Gillogly, the right of way agent, and it is known that he got something more than $3,000 but the exact amount is not known. At first DeCamp asked $5,000. Mr. W. C. Edes, the Chief Engineer is also here and the railroad officials are making daily excursions about the proposed extension. It is said that the dirt will begin to fly in a few days now.

A severe earthquake shock was felt here Sunday morning.

A company has been organized to prospect for oil, gas and coal. They have a large tract of land bonded and have about $2,000 subscribed to begin boring with. Work on the well will begin this month, so we are informed.

P. Bert and John Haux came to town Monday and filled up with something stronger than water. When they started home they commenced whipping the horse and it started to run and in turning a corner they were spilled out on the ground and Bert had his face and hands very badly bruised.

Archie Sweetsir while hunting on his father's ranch, seven miles from Willits, last Sunday, had his left thumb and part of his hand blown off by the shot gun exploding. Luckily he was not far from the house and managed to reach it alright and his father brought him to town and Drs. Blodgett and Gunn trimmed up the rough edges. He will be laid up for some time.

James Dougherty of San Francisco, was hunting in the hills near Laytonville last week with a party of friends and was bitten on the foot by a rattle snake. His companions sucked the wound and filled him up with whisky until Dr. Hogshead could be brought from Covelo. Mr. Dougherty survived the ordeal and was taken to his home last Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bird Hinton have been the proud parents of a son since last Thursday.

The two-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cyrus of Covelo, died last week.

LONELY DEATH OF AGED SURVEYOR

The body of C. A. Lesser, was found in an old cabin at Navarro last week with the whole top of his head blown off. It appears that he placed the muzzle of a shot gun in his mouth and pulled the trigger, and thus ended his life.

Lesser was a surveyor and had been in the emlpoy of the Navarro Mill Company for sixteen years. He lived in one of the cabins on the flat, and on the 23 of last March he was drinking and said he was going to go away. This was the last time that he was seen alive. Having heard of the man's disappearance, Gene Crockett made a search last Saturday. Breaking out a rear window, he entered the cabin and found the badly decomposed body of Lesser on the bed, with the gun resting between his legs.

The unfortunate man locked the door of his cabin, cleaned his gun and then with the aid of a stick discharged the shot into his mouth, tearing away the whole top of the head—Point Arena Record.

THE DREAD OF RABIES.

Out of All Proportion to the Frequency of the Disease.

Few accidents are more terrifying to the sufferer than to be bitten by a dog supposed to be mad, and there are few conditions in which prompt and intelligent action on the part of the bystanders is more desirable.

Although nearly all warm blooded animals are susceptible to rabies, it is most commonly seen in dogs. There are two forms—the "furious" and the "dumb." In the furious type after a period of melancholy or depression the animal becomes restless and irritable, with a tendency to run away and snap at everything in sight, finally becoming subdued and sullen and dying of paralysis and exhaustion. In dumb rabies the stage of irritability is absent. The dog prowls about in a listless way, with his head down and lower jaw dropped. At the same time there is difficulty in swallowing.

It is often impossible to tell from a dog's actions whether it is rabid or not. But if instead of killing the animal as quickly as possible, as is often unwisely done, the owner captures it and keeps it for a few days under lock and key the question answers itself. A rabid dog always dies in from four to eight days, so that if the animal recovers the bitten persons may be sure that they are not going to develop hydrophobia.

In any suspicious case the wound should immediately be squeezed under hot water and if deep be incised freely, so that cauterization with either a hot iron or with strong nitric acid (not with lunar caustic) may be thoroughly done. At the same time the dog should be kept under observation, or if already killed the head and neck should be packed in ice and preserved for medical examination.

Even if it seems certain that the animal was rabid the patient should not despair, for it is estimated that only 15 per cent of those bitten by rabid animals actually develop the disease, and if the Pasteur preventive inoculations are promptly begun recovery is almost certain.

The popular dread of rabies is out of all proportion to the relative frequency of the disease, and the length to which it may go is shown by the instances in which people have developed and even died of false hydrophobia, a nervous condition due to fright and simulating to some extent the real malady.—Youth's Companion.

HOW THEY DINED.

The old English had three meals a day, of which the chief meal was taken when the work of the day was finished. The first meal was at 9, dinner was about 3 o'clock, and supper was taken just before bedtime. The Normans dined at the old English breakfast time or a little later and supped at 7 p. m. In Tudor times the higher classes dined at 11 and supped at 5, but the merchants seldom took their meals before 12 and 6 o'clock.

The chief meals, dinner and supper, were taken in the hall both by the old English and the Normans, for the parlor did not come into use until the reign of Elizabeth. Breakfast did not become a regular meal until quite lately, and Dr. Murray in the Oxford Dictionary gave 1463 as the date of the earliest quotation in which the word occurred. The meal did not become recognized until late in the seventeenth century, for Pepys habitually took his draft of half a pint of Rhenish wine or a dram of strong waters in place of a morning meal. Dinner was always the great meal of the day, and from the accession of Henry IV. to the death of Queen Elizabeth the dinners were as sumptuous and extravagant as any of those now served.

Carving was then a fine art. Each guest brought his own knife and spoon, for the small fork was not introduced into England until Thomas Coryate of Odcombe published his "Crudities" in 1611. Pepys took his spoon and fork with him to the lord mayor's feast in 1663. The absence of forks led to much stress being laid upon the act of washing the hands both before and after meals and to the rule that the left hand alone should be dipped into the common dish, the right hand being occupied with the knife.

The perfect dinner at the best time of English cookery consisted of three courses, each complete in itself, and terminated by a subtlety or device, the whole being rounded off with ypocras, after which the guests retired into another room, where pastry, sweetmeats and fruit were served with the choicer wines. The English were essentially meat eaters, and it was not until the time of the commonwealth that pudding attained its extraordinary popularity. Indeed, the first mention of pudding in the menus of the Buckfeast at St. Bartholomew's hospital did not occur until 1710, and in 1712 is an item of 5 shillings for ice.—London Times.

The First Offense.

Tommy (who has been punished)—Mamma, did your mamma whip you when you were little?

Mother—Yes, when I was naughty.

Mother—Yes.

Tommy—Well, who started it, anyway?—Lippincott's.

The Henglish Haitch.

Once I dined with an English farmer. We had ham—very delicious baked ham. The farmer's son soon finished his portion and passed his plate again.

"More 'am, father," he said.

The farmer frowned.

"Don't say 'am, son. Say 'am."

"I did say 'am," the lad protested in an injured tone.

"You said 'am," cried the father fiercely. "'Am's what it should be. 'Am, not 'am."

In the middle of the squabble the farmer's wife turned to me and, with a deprecatory little laugh, explained:

"They both think they're sayin' 'am, sir."—Everybody's.

Chamberlain and the Mayor.

Joseph Chamberlain was the guest of honor at a dinner in an important city. The mayor presided, and when coffee was being served the mayor leaned over and touched Mr. Chamberlain, saying, "Shall we let the people enjoy themselves a little longer, or had we better have your speech now?"

THE HERCULES BEETLE.

To the Hercules beetle, a giant among insects, which is found in certain portions of Central and South America as well as in the island of Dominica, one of the British West Indies, belongs the distinction of being the biggest bug in the world. In appearance this creature is anything but prepossessing and looks as if it belonged with pink snakes, purple spiders and other creatures of the imagination.

It is a common trait of tourists and travelers to make little of anything seen in foreign lands, especially in the little West Indian islands, and to declare that similar things of vastly greater size or better quality occur in "God's country." When they run across the Hercules beetle, however, they are obliged to acknowledge themselves beaten.

Although so formidable in appearance, this insect is perfectly harmless. It lives in the heavy forests and feeds on the sweetish sap or gum of native trees. The larva, or grub, is about four inches long and as thick as a man's thumb and looks like a huge white maggot. It is considered a delicacy by the native negroes and caribs, who roast it in hot ashes and say that it tastes like roasted nuts.

Clumsy in appearance, the Hercules beetle possesses great powers of flight, and in the outlying villages it is not uncommon for one of these huge creatures to enter the native houses, being attracted thereto by the lights. The invariable result is a prompt extinguishing of the candle by the wind created by the beetle's buzzing wings, accompanied by screams from the inmates of the house, who imagine a jumbie, or evil spirt, has invaded their dwelling.

A popular belief among the natives is that the Hercules beetle saws off limbs of trees by grasping them between the two hornlike appendages and flying round and round. This is a manifest impossibility, as the insect has but little power in the horns, and, moreover, the upper one is lined with a soft, velvety hair, which would be rubbed off at once by any friction.

Making Light of a Heavy Washday

This highly improved HORTON Washer will take all the strain of washday off your back and shoulders. Covered Up Crime

Pete Guerra was arrested at Cloverdle last week as he was leaving the country on a warrant charging him with a criminal attack on a nine-year old Italian girl at Albion woods camp. By the time that the preliminary examination was heard the Italians had patched the affair up amongst themselves so that it was impossible to get any evidence and the defendant was discharged. The Beacon says that the fiasco proves the necessity for a permanent representative of the district attorney on the coast.

The difference between the railroad company and E. F. As the first ten miles is through low land that is covered mostly with water during the winter time it is the general opinion that work will be begun at once on that portion so as to have it completed before the winter sets in.

Killed Old Residenter

A camping party comprising Sam Reise and his brother Peter, Morgan Tibbitts, H. Gardner, of San Jose, and J. B. Abern of this city, returned last week from a camping trip to Leonard lake, Big river and other places in that section. They report a rough country to hunt in, but were rewarded with three fine bucks. One of them was an old residenter, having five points on one side and seven on the other.

Talmage Couple Married

Robert E. McCracken and Miss Minnie L. Cox, both of Ukiah valley, were married at the M. E. Church in this city Wednesday of last week. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Pettis. The young people are members of two of Mendocino county's best families and they have many friends who extend best wishes. They will live at Talmage.

The Dispatch was in error last week when it stated that Wm. Munroe, who recently committed suicide at Mendocino, was a cousin of Frank Caughey's. We received our information from a party whom we presumed knew, but his mistake was made through knowing that Mr. Caughey has relatives of that name. The William who committed suicide was not of that family, however.

NEW SHORT STORIES

Frankness Not Always a Virtue.

Jack London before setting out on his world tour in a small boat was the guest of honor at a dinner in San Francisco.

"My friends have been very frank with me about this tour," Mr. London said at the dinner. "They have told me that I am a poor sailor; that I know nothing of navigation; that I won't get anywhere near around the world; that I'll be wrecked; that I'm a fool, and so on.

"Frankness is a good thing, but sometimes it is rather unpleasant. My friends' frankness reminds me of the unusual address that an eccentric Frisco clergyman made to a young couple that he was about to marry.

"'George,' the clergyman began, 'from the bottom of my heart I congratulate you on the wise step you are about to take. It was sad indeed to see you wasting your youth in drunkenness. But all's well that ends well, and I am glad to think that you have bid an eternal farewell to drink, for of course with your prospects not so much as a weekly glass of beer, but only the barest necessities of life, will be within your means.'

"GEORGE, I CONGRATULATE YOU."

"He then turned to the young woman.

"'And you, my poor Henrietta, I congratulate most heartily, for it is seldom that girls of your appearance find husbands. Never forget that you ought by an unchangeable sweetness and a devotion without bounds try to make amends to poor George for your physical shortcomings, for you are, I repeat, a real blunder of nature.

"'And now, my dear children, I will proceed to unite you in the holy bonds of matrimony.'"

Taste of an Expert.

A Washington chemist said of Dr. H. G. Wiley of the department of agriculture:

"Dr. Wiley has all his life been a stickler for pure food and pure food laws.

"Once, when he was state chemist of Indiana, a man put up a game on him. He was at this time fighting against oleo, and the man, inviting him to a Washington birthday dinner, had oleo of a very fine grade served with the hors d'oeuvre.

"Dr. Wiley, suspecting nothing, ate of the oleo freely, and his host said:

"'How do you like the butter, sir?'

"'Excellent,' said Dr. Wiley. 'One can fairly taste the rich, pure cream in it.'

"The host gave a loud laugh.

"'Oleo!' he said. 'You've been eating oleo, man, and you never knew it.'

"Dr. Wiley retorted with a calm smile:

"'Since the most expert of us can be so easily deceived there's all the more need of the strictest laws against impure foods.'"

A Swinburne Anecdote.

"Studies In Eccentricity" having stirred up the London papers to match reminiscences of great men placed at a disadvantage, this is related as an example by the Chronicle:

"A lady of Putney, returning from a walk, thought she was late to lunch. She met a dapper little man and asked him the time. He drew himself to his full height and, flashing a withering glance at her, exclaimed, with a motion of his hand, 'Get out of my way, woman!'

"It was Mr. Swinburne, disturbed in his converse with the muses."

Guessed Right.

When Governor Frazier of Tennessee attended the launching of the battleship named in honor of that state at the shipyards in Philadelphia he entered into a discussion of that city's projected filtration system.

"But what do you do for drinking water meantime?" asked the visitor.

"We boil the water," was the reply.

"That always seemed to me to take the life out of the water," said the governor.

"That's what we boil it for," replied his informant.—Lippincott's.

Not a Distillery.

Representative Fred Landis of Indiana was coming to Washington over the Pennsylvania railroad the other day, and with him was Representative Olcott of New York.

"What's that building—a distillery?" Mr. Landis asked as the train passed the big gray buildings of the District workhouse.

"I believe it has something to do with the liquor business," Mr. Olcott answered. "I think it is known as a rectifying establishment."

Yourself.

If you wish to be miserable you must think about yourself, about what you want, what you like, what respect people ought to pay you, and then to you nothing will be pure. You will spoil everything you touch, you will make sin and misery for yourself out of everything which God sends you and you will be as wretched as you choose.—Charles

What Came of a Kiss.

[Original.]

August had come. The musical season was at its height. The grasshopper chirped all the morning, the locust sang in the afternoon, while the tree toad was preparing for an engagement evenings.

Within the drooping boughs of a copper beech hung a hammock, and in the hammock lay a girl. There was not a bit of color in her attire, from the lace about her neck to her white shoes. She had promised him a game, but it was very hot, and instead of going on to the grounds her steps had been deflected to the hammock.

What's that triangulating on the tennis court? White trousers like a pair of dividers give an appearance of triangulation. The owner of the trousers is lazily dancing a tennis ball on a racket. He wonders why she doesn't come. Presently he strolls toward the house to look for her. He doesn't find her on the porch, so he enters the hall and calls to her. No answer. He returns to the porch and stands looking out at anything, everything, nothing. Then he catches sight of something white moving under the branches of the copper beech. He triangulates there, moving with more animation than before, and, lifting a bough, looks under the green roof. She sleeps. Intent on the lovely sight before him, it doesn't occur to him that the vibrations had stopped rather suddenly. So still is she that life is evident only by the rising and falling of her bosom. The mouth is in an admirable position to be kissed, the head thrown back and partly over the hammock's side. The birds above sing love songs to one another; the insects on the lawn give a fantasia in the same strain. The man—well, the man stoops and kisses the girl.

She does not awaken, and he kisses her again.

Thrice he kisses her, and the third time she moves. Then after a bit she opens her eyes and blinks at him.

"Why, where did you come from?"

"From the tennis court, where you were to have joined me."

"It's too hot for tennis."

"I think so too. Much pleasanter here. I might have won a pair of gloves."

"You wouldn't do that."

"Why?"

"Because you are a gentleman."

"Would you never have forgiven me?"

"Never—that is, unless we had been engaged."

He thought a moment, then said, "There was no temptation under the circumstances"—

"No temptation! How complimentary!"

"I mean that knowing I would incur your displeasure if I kissed you I wouldn't think of doing so."

"Oh!"

He was sitting on a wicker chair beside her hammering the ground with his racket absently.

"What are you thinking about?" she asked.

"I once kissed a girl in a hammock," he said, "and I wasn't engaged to her either. She was asleep, just as you were. I kissed her three times, and the third time she awoke. She knew very well I'd kissed her."

"What did she do?"

"She didn't do anything."

"And what did you do?"

"I didn't do anything either at the time. But that evening it was moonlight. She went to sleep on the wicker lounge on the porch—and—well, I kissed her again."

It was now her turn to do the thinking.

"I suppose," she said presently, "that so long as you had kissed her once before"—

"Three times."

"It didn't make so much difference about the fourth kiss—that is, from you—and since she was asleep it wasn't her fault anyway."

"If you should go to sleep on the wicker lounge on the porch tonight and I should kiss you, you wouldn't be to blame, would you?"

"Certainly not. But you?"

"Oh, maybe I'd be to blame, but since you didn't know anything about it there wouldn't be any harm done."

"I don't know about that."

* * * * * * *

The moon shone down on a corner of the porch covered with wistaria, or, rather, the moon shone on the wistaria while the corner was in deep shadow. This distinction may seem trivial, but it is not in this case, for on a wicker lounge in the corner a girl lay asleep. True, one tiny ray struggling through the vine touched her lips. He was sitting beside her. This time he was in the hammock.

"Asleep?" he asked in a low tone.

There was no reply.

He bent forward and kissed her.

She awoke.

"I believe you kissed me," she said.

"I did not. A ray of moonlight was kissing you right on the lips. I kissed the ray."

"Oh, in that case"—

"It wasn't so bad, was it?"

"I suppose so." But she looked troubled.

"Well, since you seem to have some doubt about it you might make it all right by marrying me."

And she did. F. A. MITCHEL.

Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedybetter Than Three Doctors

"Three years ago we had three doctors with our little boy and everything that they could do seemed to be in vain. At last when all hope seemed to be gone we began using Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and in a few hours he began to improve. Today he is as healthy a child as parents could wish for."—Mrs. B. J. Johnston, Linton, Mass. For sale by J. R. Mathews, Ukiah, Cal.

Scores One For the People

Judge Kenesaw Landis of the federal district court, sitting at Chicago, fined the Standard Oil Company $29,240,000 on 1,462 counts for violating the law against giving or receiving rebates. It was the highest fine that could be assessed under the statute. Of course the company will carry the case to the supreme court of the United States and it will be over a year before the matter will be finally settled.

The company was fined to the limit because, as the judge states in his opinion, the cases on which conviction was secured could not be considered a first offense against the law. The Standard Oil Company for many years had considered itself above the law and had deliberately and persistently violated it. If the fine had been small it would have been regarded simply as a license, and the mammoth freebooter would have continued its lawlessness.

If this fine could be quickly followed by the conviction of the principal officials of the Standard Oil Company on a criminal charge, and John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller, John D. Archibald, H. H. Rogers and others forced to don stripes for about five years, the effects would be still better.

The railroad officials who violated the law by giving the rebates will be tried next, and under the same testimony that convicted the Standard Oil Company their convictions is apparently certain.

It is not probable, however, that any of these lawbreakers will be tried on a criminal charge. It will remembered that the president refused to allow the government's two special district attorneys to have Paul Morton prosecuted criminally. These two attorneys were very eminent in their profession and had been appointed by the legal department of the government to secure the testimony and work up the case against the Santa Fe Railroad Company for giving rebates. They secured a perfect case against Paul Morton, who had been general traffic manager of the Santa Fe but at that time was in the president's cabinet. His prosecution was stopped and Morton was allowed to resign and accept the presidency of one of the big New York insurance companies, carrying a sickening letter of recommendation from the president The two special district attorneys resigned in disgust and nothing more was done in the case.

Judge Landis, however, has made the best of his opportunity to serve the people. In addition to the fine, in burning language he laid bare to the world the enormity of the Standard Oil's crimes against society. Among the sledge-hammer blows dealt to the criminal trust was one that the nation will applaud. He said:

> "The men who thus deliberately violate this law wound society more deeply than does he who counterfeits coin or steals money from the mails."

Why, then, should they not be sent to the penitentiary sames as counterfeiter or sneak thief?

One phase of the contention raised by the Standard Oil was briefly though caustically commented upon by Judge Landis. It had been said by counsel for the company that the constitution of the United States gives an inherent right to make secret agreements with reference to railroad rates. Judge Landis said:

"Candor obliges the court to say that it knows nothing to support it but the eminence of the counsel who asserted it. A more abhorrent heresy could not well be conceived. One might as well assert the right to make a secret agreement with the collector of customs or a tax assessor for a low rate of custom duty or a much reduced rate on property."

Judge Landis has proved himself to be a just and a great man. And that spells "Friend to the People."

Japanese Should Not Be Allowed to Be Naturalized

It is reported from Washintgon that a deadlock has been reached in the Administration's treaty negotiations with Japan regarding exclusion of Japanese labor. It appears that Japan has curtly rejected the American proposals, which offered recognition of certain Japanese advantages in Corea and also naturalization for Japanese in the United States. The ground of Japan's refusal to accept these terms is said to be that the sentiment of her people at this time was not favorable to consideration of a treaty proposal.

If this be a correct statement of the situation, Japan has assumed an arrogant attitude. The terms offered her are far better than the Pacific Coast could approve. It would be nothing less than a curse to California were Japanese admitted to citizenship. In this State there are thousands of Japanese wholly unfitted for American citizenship, yet they would be likely to seek naturalization for the sake of the advantages it would afford them. These aliens when naturalized would remain at heart citizens of Japan, ready in case of war to devote themselves to the caues of their native land. And with few exceptions their votes would be for sale to the highest bidder.

President Roosevelt would do a great wrong to the Pacific Coast, where the Japanese are numerous, should he allow naturalization as the price of Japan's consent to the exclusion of her laboring class. This country has the right to shut out cheap alien labor from Asia without asking the consent of Japan or any other Nation, and should do so, whether Japan likes it or not.

Although Japan is said to refuse passports to laborers desiring to emigrate to the United States, the fact appears to be that more of them are coming to our shores than ever before. Many arrive at our ports as "students, merchants, travelers or servants," and others swarm in over the Mexican border or by way of British Columbia.

A spirited protest from representative bodies in California should go to Washington against any agreement or treaty which would allow Japanese naturalization, and insisting also upon the exclusion of Japanese labor—Sacramento Bee.

ONLY PRAISE DESERVED

A prospective talesman in the Halsey case at San Francisco displayed his animus against the graft prosecution and said it went against his "idea of fairness" that private citizens should raise a fund of $100,000 for the purposes of a public prosecution. He believes the State to be big enough and rich enough to "carry on its prosecutions without special funds being raised."

So it is. But would it do it? What aid, for instance, would a graft prosecution receive from Governor James N. Gillett, the bound thrall of William F. Herrin?

What appropriation to carry on a graft prosecution could be expected from a legislature owned, body, soul and breeches by William F. Herrin, as the last legislature of the State was notoriously owned?

What assistance could a graft prosecution expect from the Law Department of the State of California?

What help could it look for from the recent municipal authorities of San Francisco?

Is it not a fact that officialdom in State and city would be on the side of the thieves and the scoundrels?

Suppose the prosecution of Ruef and Schmitz had been left to a State Government over which was one James N. Gillett! Does not every man in California feel that the machinery of the State would be used to shield and aid the defense—that there would be no prosecution?

James N. Gillett leading a prosecution of those arch scoundrels? James N. Gillett, who was nominated for Governor of California by those same thieves, through a corrupt and shameful bargain made with Wm. F. Herrin, General Counsel of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company?

Private citizens had to jump in to finance the graft prosecution, because the machinery of State and of metropolis was in the hands of scamps who have been and scamps who may be indicted.

In place of being abused therefor, the heartfelt thanks of an entire State are due to Rudolph Spreckels and other "private citizens" for having financed this prosecution and thus done a muchly needed work which neither the State nor San Francisco would do.

And he is a poor specimen of a citizen who overlooks what has been accomplished and what bids fair still to be accomplished, and devotes his time to sneering down the splendid work because he sees or imagines he sees some ulterior political motive underlying it all—Sacramento Bee.

Corpse For A Bedfellow

A special dispatch to the Record-Herald from Junction City, Ky., says:

Major James Morton, editor of the Hardaman Free Press, unwittingly went to bed with a corpse in Junction City last night. He had missed his train, and going into the hotel, asked for a room. The clerk said the house was crowded, but assigned the editor to a room with another man. By mistake the clerk sent him into the wrong room, and the editor quietly disrobed and got into bed.

Soon a young man and a woman came in and took seats near an open window. The major thought the proceedure strange, but said nothing. Listening to what they said, he heard the remark about sitting up with the dead. Then he remembered that his bedmate had not moved and. reaching over, touched his hand.

With a yell the major jumped up with a sheet over him and rushed out of the room Believing that the corpse had come to life, the two watchers broke for another door, and all met in the office of the hotel for explanations.

Company on Howard creek, the Pollard Lumber Company on Dehaven, and the C. A. Hooper Company's plant on Hardy creek. This makes quite a combined output. Next year all these mills will be running in full blast and Westport will be a bustling town. At Union C. A. McFaul has a landing that is kept busy taking on ties and lumber. Fully 150,000 ties have been made in the vicinity of Union landing this season and will be shipped out before winter sets in.

Most of our time was spent in eating and sleeping. Still we found enough time to travel around a little and enjoy the scenery and the hospitality of a few friends. One very pleasant Sunday was spent at C. A. McFaul's at Union landing. The occasion was a birthday dinner in honor of W. P. McFaul and Mrs. C. A. McFaul, both happily having the same birthday. The dinner was certainly a splendid one and all the guests did it justice. In addition to Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McFaul there were three of their sons with their wives, and Ed. Dean and wife, nee Stella McFaul, and Arthur McFaul, the hustling young man that made the trip to the World's Fair with the Dispatch party in 1904, and W. P. McFaul and wife, J. B. Sanford wife and son and Miss Vivian Edwards.

In addition to this pleasant trip a journey was made to Usal in order "to see the country." On the way up we came into possession of about half a sack full of surf fish, and as noon overtook us at Geo. Devilbiss' we proceeded to make the fish scarce by lunching on the banks of the little stream. George was kind enough to feed the horse and give us a dozen eggs. George is a sterling democrat, but he is in hearty sympathy with the President on race suicide. He has only twelve children on the ranch and they are strong and healthy. Four of them attend the Chico normal. Two little fellows, twelve and fifteen years respectively, recently killed a big panther that measured nine feet from tip to tip. The coast will go Democratic by and by.

At Usal we were the guests of John Lima and while our stay there was limited still it was very much enjoyed. John is a jolly fellow and wanted to take us out where we could kill some deer, but we had to forego the pleasure until some other time. The scenery around Usal is grand, especially along the steep roads.

Some of the time was spent hunting, and fishing. A number of bear and deer had been seen around the McFaul homestead until our arrival. These animals knowing that sudden death and general desolation awaited them hiked for the tall timber when the edioral blunderbus appeared on the scene. We exceeded the limit by one (might as well tell a big one) on deer and the Lord only knows how many on fish. We had all the deer and fish we could eat (at one meal,) thanks to our kind friends, George Shelton and Haight Clark. The deer were not a bit afraid of Haight and the fish thought George could not pull them out.

The coast is not what it used to be, however. It seems to lack life and vim. There is plenty of work and lots of people trying to do it, but they are not the class that made the coast famous. There are very few Americans working in the mills and woods now, which accounts for the change. Most of the work is done by "Dagoes," a class that does not mingle much with the Americans. They do not accomplish as much as our people either, and it takes two or three bosses "to show" them how and what to do.

There was very little talk regarding politics as the campaign is a year off, and then there are only a few offices to be filled—Judge, Assemblyman, and supervisor. As to the Judgeship it was the consensus of opinion that Judge White had materially strengthened himself during his term of office and would be a hard man to beat. In fact his election is conceded by all. He has gained the reputation of making the fairest and best judge the county has ever had. A great many prominent republicans have openly declared for the Judge, and say that they would like to see the judiciary taken out of politics and seem to favor the republicans endorsing White, as they did Babcock for superintendent of schools a year ago. As to the assembly very little was said. There is certainly a strong anti-railroad sentiment on the coast and the people seem to desire an assemblyman that will represent the people. There was more talk about supervisor than any thing else as that is close to home. Some wise politicians thought there was a chance for a democrat this time if he came from the proper section of the district. Joe Rushing, of Fort Bragg, J. A. Lowell and George Fee, of Westport, and John Flanagan, of Mendocino, were the names the people were conjuring with, and each had friends that thought success was sure. On the republican side little was said, but most people thought that Barnard could have the nomination again if he wanted it.

After a sojourn of three weeks we finally started home, coming over to Branscomb by the old road. Here we lunched and went on to Sherwood that night where we were royally treated by the Silveria Bros., who now run the hotel formerly known as the old Lawhead place. The Silveria Bros. are from Petaluma and are intelligent and progressive men. From here the journey was continued to Willits where we remained Sunday, and then came on to Ukiah Monday, having traveled over two hundred miles and seen some of the finest scenery in the state. J. B. S.
